A CHARGE ON GAMBLING.

Judge Casteel, of St. Joseph, Talks to a Jury on This Subject.

The criminal court, of St. Joseph, is now in session, and Judge Casteel on the impaneling of the grand jury, proceeded to charge the jury, and among other things he said:

"Recently, in the pulpit of one of the leading churches of this city, the pastor—a former lawyer, by the way—made the public statement that I, as judge of the criminal court of this county, among other officers whose names were specifically mentioned, had the power to stop gambling in the City of St. Joseph. He did not state wherein I had any special jurisdiction in gambling cases that I did not possess as to other offences; and if I have not, then it follows that, if his statement is correct, I have the power to suppress all other crimes.

Either I have read the law to a poor advantage, and have wholly misconceived my duties as judge of this court, or else the said pastor was mistaken in the broad assertion that he made.

The excuse I have to offer this grand jury for calling attention to the foregoing principles and to the public utterance of the said pastor, is to impress upon you the fact that the eyes of the public will be upon you while you are engaged in the discharge of your duties; and if you fail the intelligent public will place the blame where it properly belongs.

All persons holding official positions—and you grand jurors, for the time being, occupy that relation—are the proper subjects for criticism; and whether that criticism is from the pulpit, press or private persons is immaterial. Sometimes, perchance, criticism is unjust; more often just; but whether just or unjust, we will assume that it is for the public good and made with the best of motives. If it is just, a conscientious officer will strive to profit by it; if unjust, it will do him no harm.

The highest aim of every public official should be to do right and not to please.

I must digress, just here, long enough to make this suggestion to the ministers of the City of St. Joseph who have recently been shelling the gambling houses: That if they would train their guns for a short time upon the fashionable homes of this city, where high-five and progressive euchre parties are given and prizes are played for, and where the punchbowl is in evidence, and where the young get their first taste for gaming and an appetite for drink, where both taste and appetite are whetted for the gambling den and barroom, they might strike both evils a paralyzing blow. Here is where gamblers and drunkards are made—not in the gambling den nor in the saloon. And when men—and women, for that matter—become gamblers, they will find some place to try their luck just as when they become drunkards they will find some place to drink.

Morals cannot be legislated into a community. The criminal law is only for the purpose of restraining the evil minded; it will not reform.

I have the highest respect for the sacred office of the minister of the gospel. We owe our present state of civilization, in a great measure, to those Godly men; for through their influence, holy precepts and exemplary lives the people are pointed to a moral law that will, when its influence is the guide, restrain men from wrong; doing. Yet I might suggest that it is possible that they, being human, in their zeal to do good, may become impracticable in their methods.

Do not understand me, however, gentlemen, as trying to minimize the evil effects of gambling. I think it one of the great curses of the age, and, like many other invidious evils, is getting a firmer hold upon the people of this country day by day. Gambling in high places, as well as in the hovels of sin, gambling in stocks of all kinds, in wheat, corn, meats, and, in fact, in all the products of the farm and the necessities of life, to get something for nothing, rather than make an honest living in the sweat of the face, is a prevailing curse."

Nickell's Grove.

—School will close Friday of this week.

—The roads are in pretty fair condition at present.

—Daniel Fuhrman hauled hogs Tuesday of this week.

—March came in like a lion; we hope it will go out like a lamb.

—Frank Hattabaugh will work for Dan Fuhrman, this season.

—Miss Grace Hershner began work for Matt Gelvin the first of the week.

—Martin Ebert and family moved to their new home the first of the week; we were very sorry to see them leave.

—We understand Leigh Stephenson is getting a new buggy, and is very anxious for the roads to dry up—"Girls, look out."

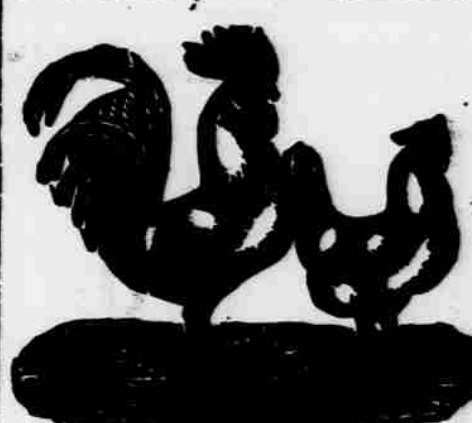

—The young ladies of the Grove gathered at the home of Nathan Smith on Tuesday of last week, for the purpose of sewing carpet rags, but after dinner, forgot themselves, and left Mrs. Smith to finish the carpet rags, while they engaged and amused themselves, playing party games, which afforded them quite a bit of fun, but the boys were somewhat awkward in acting their part in the games, but we hope next time that the young ladies will sew the rags first and play afterward. Missouri Must Have a Day.

When Governor Durbin, of Indiana, this week, asked a prominent Missourian in Charleston what date had been fixed for Missouri Day, the dignified reply was that the day had not been agreed upon. It did not enter into Governor Durbin's mind that a state having so superb an exhibit, and with the commodious Louisiana Purchase building so near at hand, would not have a special day for the gathering of all Missourians from the South Atlantic States, supplemented by thousands who would come by special trains from St. Louis, Kansas City, "St. Jo," Springfield, Sedalia, Jefferson City, Booneville, and other thriving Trans-Mississippi cities and towns.

It is a fact that no day especially dedicated to Missouri has been selected or suggested, and we trust that the governor of that great state, and its courteous and zealous commissioners at the Exposition will not consider this reminder from The News and Courier as a case of "foreign interference."

From some remarks dropped by Major C. C. Bell, one of the Missouri commissioners, in a conversation this week it may safely be inferred that he will heartily approve that one day at the Exposition be distinctively set aside for Missouri and the Missourians.

While the Missouri exhibit is not as large or as comprehensive as that of South Carolina, in several features it surpasses every State exhibit on the grounds, South Carolina not excepted, and this is the unanimous opinion of all who have admired the splendid display of minerals and hard-woods in the Mining and Forestry building, or who have longed for a thousand tongues when testing the luscious apples and sparkling wines, the products of "Old Mizoura," in the Cotton Palace. Apart from every consideration for the "eternal fitness of things" and of the advantages which would accrue to Charleston from "Missouri Day," the interest of the people on the Atlantic seaboard in the great St. Louis World's Fair would be quickened and intensified by the suggested jubilation at the Exposition in Charleston.—Charleston, S. C. News and Courier.
